1 Introduction

This Read-Me-file is accompanied by the following files:

- The Excel file labeled "HH Productivity Estimates.xls". This workbook contains the estimates of household production and labor productivity. It also contain the components used in those calculations.

- Three Excel files for components that require additional calculation. They report the source data and the calculations that generate the data that are used in "HH Productivity Estimates.xls." These are "Data Consumer Durables.xls" for stocks and depreciation of consumer durables used in household production; "Data Price Index.xls" for the price index of output; "Data Wage.xls" contains country specific tabs that report the source data and calculations for countries for which the standard source (World KLEMS) did not provide a wage for household workers.

- The Excel file labeled "TimeUseData.xls". The spreadsheet "Summary" reports for every country/year pair in the sample the average weekly hours of market work and the average weekly hours of household work for the working-age population. The remaining spreadsheets in this Excel file contain for every country separately (i) the average weekly hours per working-age person, (ii) the average weekly hours by age and, (iii) the average weekly hours by age and gender. This file also contains the information on the data sources of the time use surveys as well as a description on how to obtain the data from these sources.

- 65 different Matlab programs labeled "TimeUse[country][year].m". Each of these files extract from the micro data of a given country’s time use survey the information on individual time use and it computes the average weekly hours of market work and household work of an individual belonging to a specific age/gender group.

The rest of this document describes the methodology and data sources for the household production estimates. In Section 2, we describe the baseline methodology and the data sources we use to compute each of the factors on the right-hand side of Equation 1. For some countries and years it is not possible to apply the baseline methodology. In Sections 3-6, we describe these deviations and the data sources we use. Section 8 reports the sources of time use micro data. Finally, Section 9, describes how we aggregate the time use information at the individual level to obtain the average weekly hours of household production.
2 Baseline Methodology

We use the income method to impute the value added produced in the household. According to this approach, the value added of household production equals the sum of capital and labor used in the household each multiplied with an appropriate market rental price:

\[ Y_h^t = \frac{(R^m_t + \delta^h_t)K_h^t + W^m_tL_h^t}{P^{m,2}_t}. \]

(1)

\( Y_h^t \) denotes value added produced by the household, \( R^m_t \) denotes the nominal rental price of capital in the market, \( \delta^h_t \) denotes the depreciation rate, \( K_h^t \) denotes capital used in the household, \( W^m_t \) denotes an appropriate nominal market wage, \( L_h^t \) denotes hours worked in the household, and \( P^{m,2}_t \) denotes a market price of the subcategory of market consumption that is substitutable for household consumption.\(^1\)

2.1 Household capital \( K^h \)

We utilize the data from the OECD database on final consumption expenditures (in national currency and current prices) for: P31CP051: Furniture and furnishings, carpets and other floor coverings, P31CP052: Household textiles, P31CP053: Household appliances, P31CP054: Glassware, tableware and household utensils, P31CP055: Tools and equipment for house and garden, P31CP061: Medical products, appliances and equipment, P31CP071: Purchase of vehicles, P31CP082: Telephone and telefax equipment, P31CP091: Audio-visual, photographic and information processing equipment, P31CP092: Other major durables for recreation and culture, P31CP093: Other recreational items and equipment, gardens and pets, P31CP095: Newspapers, books and stationery.

Next, we apply the perpetual investment method (PIM) to compute the stock of capital for each asset category \( j \). For initial stock estimates, we assume that it is at its steady state which implies that:

\[ K^{h,j}_{0} = I^{h,j}_0 / \delta^{h,j}. \]

The exception are for some high tech goods for which data do not begin with other categories. For example, most Swedish categories begin in 1970 but communications equipment data begin in 1994. We assume that data were not collected because there were few expenditures on these items prior to 1994. Goods in these categories are newer. Therefore, the stock is closer to zero than the steady state. We note when this happens below.

Then, we use the standard formula to compute the time series for $K_{t}^{h,j}$ in a recursive manner: $K_{t}^{h,j} = (1 - \delta_{t}^{h,j}) K_{t-1}^{h,j} + I_{t}^{h,j}$. The depreciation rate is asset-specific and constant over time. The value of $\delta_{t}$ is taken from the BEA and corresponds to the 1925–2012 average depreciation rate for each of the asset categories (computed as $Depreciation_{t}^{j}/Stock_{t}^{j}$). Taking the 1960–2010 average or the 1970–2005 average instead of the 1925-2012 average makes only a very small difference. The depreciation rates for the different asset classes range from 14% to 31%. The high values of $\delta_{t}^{h,j}$ guarantee that the capital stock computed via the PIM converges to the "true" stock relatively quickly. We compute the current-cost capital stock. This requires to, first, transform past investments into current-price investment. That is, to compute period-$t$ capital, we express the investment of periods $t-1$, $t-2$, ... in prices of period $t$ and, then, apply the PIM.

Finally, we compute the aggregate stock of household capital by aggregating up the individual stocks: $K^{h} = \sum_{j} K_{t}^{h,j}$.

2.2 Depreciation rate $\delta^{h}$

We compute the depreciation rate of household capital by using the capital stocks for each asset category (as described above) together with the asset-specific depreciation rates. I.e. $\delta^{h} * K_{t}^{h} = \sum_{j} \delta_{t}^{h,j} K_{t}^{h,j}$. The data source is given in the previous section.

2.3 Rate of return to household capital $R^{m}$

If we had information on the rate of return of individual financial asset holdings, we could invoke an arbitrage argument and apply the same rate of return for household capital. We do not have this information for most countries. Therefore, we use the nominal yield on the respective country’s 10-year government bonds as a proxy. The data are taken from the FRED database maintained by the St. Louis Fed. In the paper, we write $R^{b}$ instead of $R^{m}$, with $b$ indicating bonds.

2.4 Rate of return to time input $W^{m}$

For $W^{m}$, we use the average hourly compensation of market workers that are hired by the private–households sector. In the paper, we write $W^{s}$ instead of $W^{m}$, with $W^{s}$ indicating servants. We use data from EU-KLEMS on (i) the total annual hours worked by private household workers and (ii) the total labor compensation of private household workers to compute the average nominal hourly compensation.
2.5 Hours worked in the household $L^h$

See Sections 8 and 9 for a detailed description of the methodology and the data sources that we use to compute $L^h$.

2.6 Working age population

For most countries, the working age population (ages 15-64) is obtained from the OECD “Historical population data and projections (1950–2050)” database. We supplement this source with ILOSTAT’s “Population by sex and age (ILO estimates and projections)” for Albania, Ecuador, Macedonia, Panama, Taiwan, and Uruguay. Basque Country data come from EUSTAT’s “Municipal Inhabitants Statistics.” Columbia data from DANE’s “Estimaciones de Poblacion 1985-2005” (http://www.dane.gov.co/index.php/poblacion-y-demografia/series-de-poblacion).

2.7 Price index and PPP–adjustment $P^{m,2}$

To obtain household value added in constant prices, we deflate current-price value added by a price index that is constructed as follows. First, we use OECD data on final consumption expenditures for selected goods and services which have a close household-produced substitute. These include the following categories: Food and non-alcoholic beverages, Clothing, Maintenance and repair of the dwelling, Goods and services for routine household maintenance, Out-patient services, Hospital services, Operation of personal transport equipment, Transport services, Restaurants and hotels, Personal care. To compute a single price index, we divide the sum of current price expenditures by the sum of constant price expenditures (the constant-price series in NOT chained - hence we can do the summation). We use 2005 as the base year of this index.

To make household value added comparable across countries, we PPP-adjust the constant-price value added. There is no readily available data on PPP factors for household value added, hence, we construct the following proxy. The OECD provides data on PPP factors for 2005 for a large number of detailed final expenditure categories. First, we select the PPP factors for those expenditure categories which have a close household-produced substitute. These include the following categories: Food and non-alcoholic beverages, Clothing and footwear, Housing, water, electricity, gas and other fuels, Household furnishings, equipment and maintenance, Health, Transport, Restaurants and hotels. Then, we construct a composite PPP factor as the expenditure-weighted average of these PPPs and, finally, we divide the constant-price value added for each country by the PPP factor.
It is not possible to use the baseline methodology for all countries and all years. The following sections describe these deviations and the data sources.

3 Capital

Some countries do not report historical data in the current (third) edition of the COICOP codes, but do report it in the previous classifications. We use the closest indicators to backcast the COICOP 3 real and nominal series using the growth rates of indicator series.

To obtain previous period investment $I_{t-1}$ using indicator $X$, we calculate:

$$I_{t-1} = \frac{X_{t-1}}{X_t} I_t$$  \hspace{1cm} (3)

We iterate this calculation backwards beginning at the earliest observation of the base series.

Some countries do not report any data in three digit COICOP 3 codes. We use the closest available classifications, as described below.

3.1 Albania

2 digit COICOP from “Annual National Accounts (Expenditure Method): Gross Domestic Product Final 2012 and Semi-Final 2013” Tables 21 and 22 is broken out using “Household Budget Survey in Urban Area 1999-2000” both from INSTAT. We assume that the item share of expenditure within each 2 digit equivalent category in those years is the same as in 2000. The following gives the corresponding categories.

- Furniture: 5.1.
- Equipments: 5.3.
- Furnishing: 5.4.
- Automobile: 7.1.
- Audio-visual equipment: 9.1.

We omit 5.2, 5.5, 6.1, 9.2, 9.3 and 9.5.

Price movements are given year over year changes. We cumulate these changes into an index and deflate the nominal expenditure.
3.2 Australia

Australian classification system is less comprehensive than COICOP, though closely related. We use “Furniture, floor coverings and household goods,” “Household appliances,” “Household tools,” “Medicines, medical aids and therapeutic appliances,” “Purchase of vehicles” “Goods for recreation and culture,” and “Newspapers, books and stationery.” from Australian National Accounts: National Income, Expenditure and Product (ABS publication 5206.0), Table 8: Household Final Consumption Expenditure (HFCE), accessed July 7, 2014.

Data are converted to calendar year from fiscal year by summing quarters.

The real data go back to 1986, except for vehicles which goes back to 1960. We use the next level up price index to backcast price indices to 1960.

- “Furnishings and household equipment” for “Furniture, floor coverings and household goods,” “Household appliances,” and “Household tools.”
- “Health” for “Medicines, medical aids and therapeutic appliances.”
- “Recreation and culture” for “Goods for recreation and culture,” and “Newspapers, books and stationery.”

For health and recreation, real data only go back to 1970. We use total “Final consumption expenditure” prices to backcast price indices to 1960.

3.3 Basque Country

Family Expenditure Statistics Tables 1 and 2, EUSTAT, reports nominal expenditure in COICOP 3. Real expenditure is nominal deflated by Spanish price indices.

http://en.eustat.eus/bancopx/english/id_3593/indiceRR.html#axzz3iWrTZswi

3.4 Columbia

DANE reports detailed expenditure in COICOP 2 from 1965 to 2005, available at:

http://www.dane.gov.co/index.php/component/content/article/77-cuentas-nacionales/
.../cuentas-anuales/2815-cuentas-de-produccion-gastos-de-consumo-y-formacion-de-capital
.../cuentas-anuales/5155-bases-anteriores

Most categories are covered, though communications equipment is omitted and three recreational categories (COICOP 3 091-093) are aggregated into a single series. Gardening tools (055) do not begin until 1992. We use the steady state value as the initial condition. Real data

These data are extrapolated forward to 2012 in a similar method as the backcasting using two digit COICOP 3 data.

3.5 Ecuador

The source of consumer expenditure data is “Cuentas nacional no. 25” report from the Banco Central del Ecuador, tables 42 (nominal) and 34 (real). The classification system is different, with less detail than COICOP. Below is the list of codes with the COICOP code whose depreciation rate was used in PIM.

- 031 Muebles (COICOP 051)
- 029 Maquinaria, equipo y aparatos electricos (COICOP 053)
- 027 Vidrio, ceramica y refractarios, cemento, articulos de hormigin y piedra (COICOP 054)
- 030 Equipo de transporte (COICOP 071)
- 023 Pasta de papel, papel y cartin, productos editoriales y otros (COICOP 095)

3.6 Germany

3.7 India

The classification accounts are based on COICOP rev 2, so are somewhat less detailed than COICOP rev 3. The following gives the corresponding COICOP codes.

- 4.1 fur. furnishing and repairs: 051
- 4.2 ref. cooking, washing appl.: 053
- 4.3 glassware, tableware and utn.: 054
- 4.4 other goods: 055
6.3 purchase of tpt. serv.: 071

7.1 eqpt., paper and stationery: 091

We omit COICOP 052, 061, 082 and 092-3,095.

3.8 Japan

The Cabinet Office publishes estimates for consumer durable stocks and expenditures. The categories are:

Data are reported using SNA93 for 1980-2009 for the categories “Furniture and floor coverings,” “Household appliances,” “Personal transport equipment,” “Information transmission equipment” and “Others.”

They are reported using SNA68 for 1970 to 1979 for categories: “Furniture, fixtures, carpets and other floor coverings;” “Heating and cooking appliances, and similar major appliances, including fittings;” “Motor cars, trailers and caravans; motorcycles and bicycles;” “Radio and television sets and gramophones;” and “Photographic equipment, musical instrument, boats and other major recreational durables.”

We use the Cabinet Office stock estimate for 1969 as the initial condition.

3.9 Macedonia

The nominal expenditure are from Eurostat Table nama co3 c, July 17, 2015 release. The Macedonian State Statistical Office MKStat database reports year over year price changes. http://www.stat.gov.mk/MetodoloskiObjasSoop_en.aspx?id=32&rbrObl=7 We cumulate these changes into an index and deflate the nominal expenditure.

3.10 New Zealand

The New Zealand classification is less detailed than COICOP. We the following categories from Tables SND131AA and SND134AA, “Household Final Consumption Expenditure by item (Annual-Mar),” Nominal and chain index, 18 September 2014 release.

- Furniture, Floor Coverings and Appliances
- Textiles and Tableware
- Cars, Motor Cycles and Other Vehicles
- Communications
- Recreation and culture
“Communications” and “Recreation and culture” include both goods and services. We calculate the share of the major categories that accounted for by in scope goods using the 2010 data from the “Household Economic Survey: Year ended 30 June 2013”. We use 2.1 percent of “Communications” for both real and nominal expenditure and 13.5, 2.2, 13.9 and 10.5 percent of “Recreation and culture” respectively for COICOP codes 091-093, 095. We exclude medical spending since there are no data.

Specifically, we calculate the share of nominal expenditure of “Telecommunication equipment” in “Communication” for COICOP 082 and the share in “Selected recreation and culture goods and services” accounted for by:

091 Audio-visual equipment, Computing equipment, Recording media.

092 Major durables for outdoor recreation.

093 Musical instruments; Games, toys, and hobbies; Equipment for sport and outdoor recreation; Plants, flowers, and gardening supplies.

095 Books; Newspapers and magazines; Miscellaneous printed matter; Stationery and drawing materials.

3.11 Norway

Nominal expenditure is backcast using the previous classifications.

- Furnishing (12a)

- Textile Equipment Services and floor rugs (12h)

- Appliances (12b-g,i): Plates and cookers, Vacuum Cleaners, Electric Heaters, Washing Machines, Refrigerator and the like, Other electrical, Sewing & Knitting Machines

- Tableware (12j-n): gold, silver and pewter; Ornamental Items; porcelain, ceramics; polished and smooth glassware; Other Tableware

- Other furniture and furnishing items (12o)

- Medicine and instruments (17e)

- Purchase of Vehicles (20a)

- Telephones (28b)
• Audiovisual equipment (24a+b): Television Receiver and Radio receivers (and gramophones)

• Durables for recreation and culture (24d+e): Musical Instruments and Sports equipment, toys,

• Books and stationery (22+29c)

Real expenditure data only exist for highest level of aggregation. Use price indices of these series to backcast price indices.

• Furniture and Household articles (IV): COICOP 051-055

• Health (VI): COICOP 062.

• Transport (V): COICOP 071-073.

• Other (IX): COICOP 082.

• Leisure (VII): COICOP 091-093, 095.

Real expenditures are nominal expenditures deflated by backcast price indices. Data are rebased, so we use base 1961 data to backcast from 1970 to 1961 data and base 1955 data to backcast from 1961 to 1954.

3.12 Panama

The data are drawn from the Supply and Use Tables, 2007-2012 National Accounts, INEC, Panama.

We use the 2007 table, with provides more product detail (4 digit), to break out the 2008-2012 data which is only available at the 2 digit level. We assume that the 4 digit share of expenditure within each 2 digit code in those years is the same in 2007. The corresponding codes are:

• 3501: COICOP 05.1.

• 2402: COICOP 05.2.

• 3803: COICOP 05.3.

• 29: COICOP 06.1.
• 3809, 3819: COICOP 07.1.
• 3805, 3807: COICOP 09.1.
• 3503 - 3505: COICOP 09.3.
• 27: COICOP 09.5

We omit COICOP 05.4-.5, 08.2, 09.2.

The accounts report year over year price changes. We cumulate these changes into an index and deflate the nominal expenditure.

3.13 Russia

Russia does not have full 3 digit coverage of COICOP. We use COICOP 05 to stand in for COICOP 05.1-05.5 and use the depreciation rate for 05.1. We use COICOP 09 to stand in for COICOP 09.1-09.3, 09.5 and use the depreciation rate for 09.1. COICOP 06.1 and 07.1 begin in 2009. We use the 2 digit level up to backcast to 2005. We omit COICOP 08.2.

3.14 South Africa

Use South African classification system, downloaded from South African Reserve Bank database (accessed July 9, 2014). This system is less comprehensive than COICOP, though closely related. The categories are:

• Furniture, household appliances, etc (KBY6051)
• Household textiles, furnishings, glassware, etc (KBY6057)
• Medical and pharmaceutical products (KBY6065)
• Personal transport equipment (KBY6052)

• Semi-durable goods - Recreational and entertainment goods (KBY6059)
• Other durable goods (KBY6054)
• Computers and related equipment (KBY6075): Data begin in 1992. We assume a zero initial stock.
3.15 Spain

For 1995-1999, we use base 1995 COICOP data from INE.es to backcast 2000 OECD data. We backcast both nominal and real. Despite using the same classification system, the levels of the INE.es data are similar but different.

For 1986-1994, we use base 1986 data INE.es to backcast from the 1995 estimate above. The classifications are a good match aside for several recreation categories missing and only aggregate communications available.

- 4.1 Muebles y accesorios fijos, alfombras y otros revestimientos de suelos y reparaciones
- 4.2 Articulos textiles para el hogar, otros accesorios y reparaciones
- 4.3 Aparatos calefaccion, cocina y gran. electrodomes. incluido accesorios, instalacion y reparacion

3.16 Sweden

Categories are good match aside from not having an indicator for Gardening tools (COICOP 055). COICOP 082 (Telephones) data only begin in 1994. We exclude these items for the missing years and set the initial year at the steady state level for gardening tools and zero for telephones.

3 digit equivalent detail is only given for 2011.
http://eng.stat.gov.tw/public/Attachment/541795218A8RC8SAF.xls
We assume that the item share of expenditure within each 2 digit equivalent category in those years is the same as in 2011.

3.18 UK

Eurostat reports 3 digit COICOP real data back to 1990 and nominal data back to 1970.

ONS changed deflation methods in 2011. We use the 2010 version of price deflators, which extends to 1964, to backcast the price indices and obtain real estimates of the Eurostat data. (The 2011 method was only estimated back to 1997.)

Original data in "UK HHFCE 2010 Consistent Prices.xlsx"

3.19 Uruguay

The source data come from the supply-use tables from the Banco Central del Uruguay. They report final consumption expenditures of households by supply category. The 2005 base year real data (covering 2005 to 2012) are backcast using the 1997 base year data (covering 1997 to 2005).

Base year 2005:
http://www.bcu.gub.uy/Estadisticas-e-Indicadores/Cuentas\%20Nacionales/COU_05_08/PRESENTACION05_COUanualesprod.HTM
Base year 1997:
http://www.bcu.gub.uy/Estadisticas-e-Indicadores/Cuentas\%20Nacionales/COU_97_05/PRESENTACION97_COUpred.HTM

The classification system is different, with less detail than COICOP. Below is the list of codes with the COICOP code whose depreciation rate was used in PIM.

- D.UUTT Muebles; productos de industrias manufatureras n.c.p.; reciclamiento (COICOP 051)

- D.22TT Diarios, revistas y publicaciones periodicas; impresiones en general y reproduccion de grabaciones (COICOP 095)
4 Price Indices

These data use the same sources as the capital data. The methods are very similar to what is described above.

4.1 Albania

Sources and methods are the same as for capital. The corresponding categories are:

- Maintenance: 5.6
- Transportation: 7.3
- Personal care: 12.1

We omit 4.3, 6.2 and 7.2.

4.2 Australia

As with durable goods expenditures, the Australian classification does not match COICOP. The codes we use are:

- Food
- Clothing and footwear
- Household tools
- Total health services
- Operation of vehicles
- Transport services
- Hotels, cafes and restaurants
- Other services

There are no home maintenance data. We use "Household Tools" nominal expenditure and create a real expenditure using the "Housing, water, electricity, gas and other fuels” price index.

There are no real "Health Services” data. We create real expenditure using “Health” price index (back to 1970), extended with total consumption PI (1960-1969).
Real “Operation of Vehicles” data only go back to 1970. We backcast the price index using the “Transport Services” price indices to create real series back to 1960. There is no “Personal services.” We use nominal “Other Services” and create real series using total consumption PI.

4.3 Basque Country

Same source and methods as capital data.

4.4 Columbia

Since three digit data end in 2005, we use next up two digit COICOP 3 data.

4.5 Ecuador

The data sources are the same as for capital. The codes used are:

- Food and beverages 010-019.
- Clothing 021
- Health and personal services 043

• 6.3 purchase of tpt. serv.
• 1.4 hotels and restaurants
• 8.1 personal care and effect

4.7 Japan
Japan only has consumption data at the 2 digit COICOP level. We use the 2 digit code that includes the required 3 digit code. (e.g. we use 03 when 031 is needed.)

1994-2012 2 digit COICOP version 3 from OECD.

We integrate the two by rebasing to 1994 and rebase the composite series to 2005 to match rest of data.

4.8 Macedonia
The same method as with capital is used to deflate nominal expenditures.

4.9 New Zealand
The categories used are:
• Food and nonalcoholic beverage.
• Clothing and footwear.
• Transport.
• Restaurants and hotels.

4.10 Norway
Eurostat, Table nama co3 c, Oct. 24, 2014 release.

4.11 Panama
The details are similar to the capital data. The codes used are:
• 18-21, 2204: Food and non-alcoholic beverage.
• 2403: Clothing.
4602: Maintenance and repair of the dwelling.

5801, 5802: Medical services.

43: Transportation services.

42: Hotels/restaurants.

We omit personal services.

Since the data begin in 2007, we extend it to 2005 using the final consumption expenditures of households price index (1996 prices)

Panama was not part of the 2005 ICP, so we use the estimated PPP for private consumption from “Estimation of PPPs for non-benchmark economies for the 2005 ICP round.”

4.12 Poland

Eurostat, Table nama co3 c, Sep. 23, 2014 release.

4.13 Russia

“Other Services” (NACE 2 industry S) hourly wage from Labor Cost Survey 2013 backcast using monthly labor earnings for “Services,” from “Average monthly wage and salary per employee (public and private sector), 2000-2013.”

5.2 Australia

The ABS Employee Earnings and Hours (Cat. No. 6306) survey reports occupational wages intermittently and includes housekeepers (1993-4) and cleaners (1996-2006). These wages match up well with EU KLEMS Retail trade wages (Industry 52, 2009 edition). Earnings are for full time adult non-managerial employees, including overtime payments and hours.

There are no Estonian data for private household wages. However, Lithuania and Latvia do have data for this sector. It appears that Other Services (Industry 93) from EU KLEMS is a good
These wages are similar to both the level of private HH in the other Baltic countries and Other Service wages are similar across these countries.

Basic data come from ILOSTAT, which reports average monthly wages for employees of private households (ISIC-Rev.3 industry P) for 2010. We divide this by 4 times average weekly hours of these workers (ISIC-Rev.4 industry T) for 2011.

5.10 Mexico

The hourly wage is compensation/employee/(52*weekly hours).

5.11 New Zealand

Statistic New Zealand’s Linked Employer-Employee Data 2012 reports quarterly mean earnings for “Private Households Employing Staff” from 2006Q4 to 2011Q3. We calculate weekly average as the annual quarterly average/12 (weeks per quarter). Accessed 10/22/14.

The hourly wage is weekly compensation/weekly hours.

Backcast using Industry S (Other Services) wage from 2012 EU KLEMS. As validation, we use occupational data from New Earnings Survey, which covers 1970-1997. This survey reports full-time adult hourly earnings by occupation by sex (New Earnings Survey, Part D, Tables 86 and 87). Though occupational classifications change over time, there is significant coverage for "Home and domestics helpers, maids" for women and "Caretaker" for men. This backcast is very similar in level and trend for these series. We conclude that this backcast is a reasonable proxy for UK domestic worker wages.

9 Aggregation

In this section, we describe the procedure that we apply to aggregate the time use information at the individual level to obtain the average weekly hours of household production. First, we calculate the average weekly hours for different demographic groups. We consider men and women separately and 10 age bins: 15-19, 20-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-54, 55-59, 60-64 years. This gives us 20 different age/gender groups. Weighting by age and gender is important because the time spent on home work varies substantially over the life cycle and is generally very different between men and women. Moreover, the observations obtained from time use surveys are generally not equally spread across all days of the week. For example, there may be more Monday-diaries in the sample than Sunday-diaries. This is an important issue because individuals typically spend their time very differently across weekdays. Hence, using simple averages across all days of the week would likely lead to a considerable aggregation error. We account for that by calculating, for each demographic group, the average hours for an average weekday (Monday to Friday), an average Saturday and Sunday and then we aggregate to obtain the weekly average. The final step of the procedure concerns the cross-age and cross-gender aggregation to obtain the population average. We take data from the OECD on population shares by age and gender and we use these shares as weights in the aggregation.
